

ONE NEWSPAPER TOLD TRUTH---WHOLE TRUTH

Editor Of Indiana Paper Became Tired Of Being Called Liar So Often

Of course newspapers do not always tell "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth," but for that matter, we have never had the address of anyone, even newspaper critics, gifted with this accomplishment.

Those of our acquaintance who have been the quickest to refer to "newspaper lies," are themselves among the most reckless persons with the truth we have ever known.

The Publisher's Auxiliary relates the effort of two newspaper men who resolved to stick to the plain unvarnished facts:

It is not pleasant and profitable always to tell the truth in the columns of a newspaper. Men who have tried this heretofore have always come to grief. Only a few days ago the editor of a paper in Indiana grew tired of being called a liar, and announced that he would tell the truth in the future; and the next issue of the paper contained the following items:

"John Bonin, the laziest merchant in town, made a trip to Belleville yesterday.

"John Coyle, our grocer man, is doing a poor business. His store is dirty and dusty. How can he do much?

"Rev. Styx preached last Sunday night on 'Charity.' The sermon was punk.

"Dave Sonkey died at his home in this place. The doctor gave it out as heart failure. Whiskey killed him.

"Married--Miss Sylvan Rhodes and James Conlin, last Saturday, at the Baptist parsonage. The bride is a very ordinary town girl, who doesn't know any more about cooking than a jack rabbit, and never helped her mother three days in her life. She is not a beauty by any means, and has a gait like a duck. The groom is an up-to-date loafer. He has been living off the old folks at home all his life, and is not worth shucks. It will be a hard life.

"The governor of our great state, a very ordinary man, and who was elected by accident, was here yesterday. He has very few friends here now. He promised some of the voters of this precinct a piece of the pie in event of his election, but had forgotten all about it when the time to hand over the office rolled around."

Which reminds us of an Illinois editor who became tired of weilding the whitewash in the matter of obituaries, decided to reform and tell the truth just once. He commented as follows upon the death of a citizen:

"Died--Aged fifty-six years, six months and thirteen days. Deceased was a mild-natured pirate with a mouth for whiskey. He came here in the night with another man's wife and joined the church at first chance. He owes us several dollars for the paper, a large meat bill, and you could hear him pray six blocks. He died singing 'Jesus Paid It All,' and we think he was right; he never paid anything himself. He was buried in an abestos casket, and his many friends threw palm leaf fans in his grave, as he may need them. His tombstone will be a favorite resting place for the hoot owls."--Exchange.

A Timely Warning

ELEVEN well-known automobiles have advanced in price within the last ninety days.

The Maxwell Company has not increased their prices. We do not know what their plans are, but we do know and you know that materials entering into the construction of good automobiles now cost from 20 to 300 per cent more than they did six months ago.

Nothing is to be gained by delay. Much may be lost.

Not only may you lose several dollars in the purchase price, but you are sacrificing the enjoyment, the relaxation, the health-giving properties--everything, in fact, that makes motoring the favorite pastime of the nation.

We urge you to come in and investigate the Maxwell.

Or, we will refer you to any number of Maxwell owners and let them tell you their own story in their own way.

They will tell you what they have told us. That the Maxwell is good-looking--that it is powerful--that it is comfortable--that it is economical--in short, that it is the best investment they ever made. They will tell you more and they will tell you gladly and freely.

That's the way they feel toward us and the Maxwell Car.

Whatever you do, don't put this off. We have a few cars on hand and can take orders for immediate or future delivery--at present prices. If you can't come in today, phone us for a Maxwell demonstration.

"Canned Willie" Is Staple For Soldiers

In an "Encyclopedia of Military Terms," just published by Canadian troops serving in France, an old staple army article, corned beef, is given the name of "bully."

Members of the United States Marine Corps, who publish no encyclopedia, call the same thing "Canned Willie," and they point out that troops all over the world have different and expressive terms describing the tinned corned beef product.

Our Marines give no reason for their "canned Willie" version of the corned beef affair, other than that they try to be original in all things, and that, in going about the world in performance of duty, they learn what the other fellow is doing in a nicknaming way and are thus able to keep right up to the minute.

Depositors' Money Was Safe; Vault Of Hazel Bank Closed

One morning recently officials of the Dees Bank of Hazel, Ky., found that they could not open the bank vault. The combination would not work according to directions and the vault remained locked all day. The officials wired the company from whom the vault was purchased and an expert was sent at once to open it, which he did in a few minutes, after arriving at Hazel. An error in the printed instructions on how to work the combination is said to have caused the trouble.
